LID ON BINGO EXTENDED TO COUNTY AREA

Sheriff Closes Game at Club After Police Order Five To Cease in City.

WARNINGS ISSUED

Others Starting Will Result In Arrests, Seizure of Equipment, Officers Say.

The lid that was clamped on bingo in Mansfield Saturday was extended to all of Richand county today by Sheriff Frank E. Robinson who said he closed the only game operating outside the city and would permit none to start in villages or rural districts.

The sheriff said he asked Marine club officials to close their game at the clubhouse on U. S. Route 30-S after the ban was put on in Mansfield by Police Chief Thomas M. Bell. The club agreed to co-operate in enforcing the ban, the sheriff said.

"The Marine club had the only game in the county as far as I know and if I hear of any others they will be closed too," Sheriff Robinson said.

Five games were closed in Mansfield Saturday night by order of Chief Bell who said bingo had become too commercialized in the city. He warned that equipment will be confiscated and the operators arrested if games are started.

"We don't intend to have operators in Mansfield moving out to the suburban or rural districts to open their games," Sheriff Robinson said. He added that police had not told him of their plan to stop bingo in the city.

Meanwhile, Chief Bell said he had received a number of anonymous telephone calls over the week-end from city residents, most of whom praised police for closing the games Three men and two women called on him personally this morning to commend him and the police for ther action, he said.

Sheriff Robinson said persons from many surrounding cities, including Galion, Bucyrus, Ashland, Wooster, and Mt. Vernon, were driving to Mansfield to play every week, indicating that bingo was not permitted in their home communities.

"I'd be against it for that reason alone," the sheriff added, "for this is no time for people to be using their tires to drive long distances to play games in which they stand a good chance of losing their money."

Nebraskans Collect 104 Pounds of Scrap for Every Man, Woman and Child—Now It's YOUR Turn to Act

Today it becomes YOUR turn to go on with this story written by men, women and children of Nebraska.

They lil it with sweat and energy, with their hearts in it.

The Nebraskans gathered scrap for the nation's steel mills whose war production has fallen off for lack of it. They did it with such unselfish devotion that newspapermen who worked with them choke with emotion when they try to tell of it.

American newspapers, inspired by what happened in Nebraska and at the request of War Production Board Chief Donald M. Nelson, who is worried by the dangerously low rate of scrap recovery, today undertook a nationwide drive to speed collection.

Newspapers throughout the country have pledged their help in rousing their communities to a national, co-operative effort in digging through homes, plants and farms for the old metal so vital to the production of tanks, guns, planes and ships.

This intensified drive began in some sections at dawn today but starts officially Sept. 28 and continues till Oct. 17.

If you think your help is unneeded,listen:

America's steel mills can turn out 90 million tons of steel. This year they will have turned out only 85 million tons. The reason: Lack of scrap to produce at capacity.

The mills are gobbling scrap metal at the rate of 4 million tons a month. Ordinarily they would have 6 weeks supply of scrap on

TIRPITZ RAIDS ARCTIC CONVOY LANES, REPORT

Giant German Battleship at Sea Again, London Hears, After Being Repaired.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(UP)—Unconfirmed reports said today that Germany's giant battleship Tirpitz had failed in an attempt to break out to sea from Norway to attack an Allied convoy and may have been torpedoed.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—The German super-battleship Tirpitz was reported today to have left her refuge in the Norwegian port of Trondheim and to be patrolling Arctic sea lanes under the cover of Nazi warplanes in search of Allied convoys.

The report was the first intimation of activity by the great warship since last July 9, when the Russians announced that one of their submarines had scored two torpedo hits on her in Arctic waters

The Tirpitz was said to have holed up in Trondheim fjord after this attack hiding there during the long summer days when her movements could easily have been checked by aircraft had she ventured forth.

With the longer nights of autumn, however, the battleship would have a better chance of operating undetected in the Arctic shipping lanes leading to Russia

Observers here said that the Germans obviously were calling upon every means at their disposal in an attempt to smash Allied convoys taking vital war materials to embattled Russia.

Only yesterday the German high

THREE INJURED

Soldiers, New Yorker Hurt as Auto Goes Into Ditch.

Two soldiers from the Locomotive Engineers camp, Bucyrus, and a New York City autoist escaped with cuts and bruises Sunday afternoon when the car in which they were riding plunged into a ditch along U S. route 30 near East Mansfield.

State highway patrolmen brought the driver, Dr. Jacob E. Kaufman, New York, and James Richardson and Sam Robertson, soldiers, to General hospital for treatment. All three were released.

Dr. Kaufman told patrolmen the three were sitting in the front seat of the car. When he reached into a dash compartment to get a cigaret he temporarily lost control of the car, he said, and plunged into the ditch to avoid striking a utility pole.

Willkie In Moscow, Hopes For Frank Talk With Stalin

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW—Wendell L. Willkie said today he hoped to have a long, straightforward and frank talk with Joseph Stalin because "I understand he is a man who likes frankness and I like frankness too."

Willkie arrived here yesterday and rose at 6 a. m. today, spending his first morning in the Soviet capital walking the streets before breakfast. He encountered columns of Russians on their way to work.

Before coming here Willkie toured Russian factories and collective farms. He declared he had been asked some 50 times about a second front and said: "I want to check a lot of things here."

Willkie said he planned to deliver to Premier Joseph Stalin a written message from President Roosevelt and that he already had asked to visit the front.

He said he thought the "front down in Stalingrad is just as much an American and British front as it is Russian."

President Roosevelt's special representative said he had failed to find any letdown in spirits or the war effort in Russia.

Willkie said he found the Russians appreciated the aid they have received from the United States and Great Britain "but they didn't think our aid has been enough."

SENATE STARTS DEBATE TODAY ON PRICE BILL

House Consideration of Its Inflation Control Plan To Begin Tomorrow.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The unprecedented anti-inflation bill came up in the senate today, along with a committee report that food prices had been advancing at the rate of 40 per cent a year since last spring.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Administration leaders opened a drive in congress today to deliver to President Roosevelt by the end of the week legislation delegating to him broad new statutory powers to control the cost of living.

The senate prepared to start debate during the day on a measure authorizing and directing the president to act before Nov 1 to stabalize prices, wages and salaries at Sept. 15 levels

The house, awaiting a decision by its rules committee on the length and scope of its prospective debate, scheduled consideration of a somewhat different version tomorrow with leaders counting on a final vote late Wednesday or Thursday.

Senator Brown (D., Mich) expressed hope the senate would pass the bill Wednesday, but Republican Leader McNary (Ore.) said final action might not come until Thursday or Friday.

A speedy adjustment of senate-house differences would be necessary to put the measure on the president's desk Saturday, five days before the Oct. 1 deadline he

FROST ARRIVES 2 DAYS EARLY

Beats Autumn's Debut, Leaves VegetationWhite; Mercury Down to 37.

Jack Frost arrived today three days in advance of autumn which is due Wednesday and left vegetation in low areas in the city and county covered with white. Damage to crops, however, was believed slight.

The mercury this morning dropped to 37, lowest of the season, and the weatherman said there probably will be more frost tonight. It was 59 at noon today, one below Sunday's high.

The sharp drop in temperature —45 degrees since Saturday—left Mansfielders shivering today and sent them in search of heavier clothing. This morning's crisp weather was like winter when compared with the humid 82-degree reading recorded Saturday

Most garden crops were too far advanced to be damaged seriously by today's frost, but County Agent George B. Ganyard said corn is greener than usual at this time of the year and might be harmed by heavy frost

Despite a cool August and the chilly weather today, the summer which will end Wednesday has been a little warmer than the average, official weather figures show.

Cannon, Planes Help to Press Defenders Back

Germans Advance Yard By Yard Over Bodies of Own Dead; Suffering Heavy Casualties In North As Reds Fight Desperately.

(By United Press)

MOSCOW—Dispatches from blazing Stalingrad today said that Nazi cannon and fleets of bombing aircraft have started the greatest bombardment of the war against the "Red Verdun" of the Volga river.

Attacking by the thousand under cover of the pulverizing bombardment, the Nazis were reported to be pressing the Stalingrad defenders back, yard by yard, often over ruins and streets slippery with blood of dying defenders and attackers.

Nazi casualties were said to be mounting, especially in the rubble-heaped northwestern sector of Stalingrad where a battle was in progress for every house and every heap of broken brick and mortar which could be transformed into a pillbox.

The Nazis were said to have moved up heavy, long-range siege cannon which were pouring steel and high explosive into the battered city.

Pravda described the artillery-air bombardment as the heaviest of the war, surpassing even the terrific punishment inflicted on besieged Sevastopol.

Front-line dispatches to the Communist organ Pravda said the battle grew more intensive every hour, and that the Germans were throwing in reinforcements and driving ahead "at some points." Presumably, these enemy gains were on the northwestern outskirts, The defenders were heavily outnumbered

The Soviet noon communique admitted no German advance, and reported the killing of two enemy regiments (perhaps 10,000 men.)

"In the Stalingrad area, fierce fighting continued, the communique said. "During battles our units wiped out two regiments of German infantry, destroyed 11 tanks and 89 trucks and silenced two artillery and eight mortar batteries"

The Soviet high command had reported last midnight that counter-attacks had driven the Germans from some sectors in northwestern Stalingrad and regained some streets.

Dispatches gave a vivid picture of the battleground, one of the bloodiest in history.

Huge clouds of smoke enveloped Stalingrad's outskirts and the fires of burning buildings were visible at night miles away. The earth

SPLIT: RAF Hits Munich And Saar Basin In Double Attack

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Broad sections of Munich, birthplace of the Nazi party and site of important German war industries, lay devastated today under the weight of a smashing RAF attack which returning pilots said touched off fires so vast they could be seen 100 miles away.

Details of the assault were unfolded last night after the air ministry analyzed reports of bomber crews who winged their way homeward after dawn yesterday from the 1,300-mile round trip foray — the 11th night raid on Germany this month.

The attack on Munich was accompanied by another raid on the oft-bombed Saar industrial region in western Germany.

While the exact number of planes participating in the Munich raid was not disclosed, official reports indicated that the destruction caused rivaled that sown in other German cities in some of the RAF's mightiest assaults.

The British reported the loss of 10 ships. Assuming that these losses amounted to five per cent, observers reckoned that upwards of 200 aircraft took part.

The air ministry said the raiders were over Munich for 30 minutes and loosed tons of big bombs as well as many incendiaries.

(London dispatches hinted strongly that the RAF had employed some of its new 8,000-pound bombs as well as the 4,000-pound "block busters" used in many previous massed assaults.)

Advices from Switzerland, where several border cities had air raid alerts, said the detonations of bomb blasts in southern Germany were so great that the blasts could be heard far inside the Swiss borders.

CLEAR: Last Japs Driven Out Of Milne Bay By Australians

(By United Press)

GEN. M'ARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia — Australian troops under Maj. Gen. Cyril Clowes have cleaned out the entire Milne bay area at the southeastern tip of New Guinea and thus have consolidated the biggest Japanese defeat of the war in the Australian zone, a spokesman for Gen Douglas MacArthur announced today.

It was indicated that the remnants of the Japanese invasion force trapped in that area had fought tenaciously to the last, first in small groups, then in pairs or alone, until all had been wiped out.

Toward the last, the Australians mopping up the wild jungle country into which the enemy troops fled, encountered only pairs of men and individuals, the survivors of a big invasion force which landed on the stormy night of Aug. 25 on the bay shore only 450 miles from continental Australia.

News of final, complete victory at Milne bay roused hope that MacArthur would outsmart the Japanese advancing on Port Moresby from the southern ridges of the Owen Stanley mountains 32 air line miles away.

Just three weeks ago, all Australia was intensely anxious over the Milne bay situation and saw an urgent threat not only to Port Moresby, the big Allied advanced

HOLLYWOOD

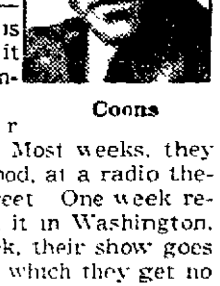
HOLLYWOOD — Glamour factory at war:

September is the month when Hollywood is boasting about "Stars Over America" selling war bonds. Any month since last March Hollywood could boast about "stars over the world."



Coons

The stars don't boast about it—all they do is try to make it true for themselves.

Week after week, they do. Most weeks, they do it in Hollywood, at a radio theater on Vine street One week recently, they did it in Washington. Week after week, their show goes out—a show for which they get no credit in these United States, a show that is meant for no other audiences than the Army, Navy, Marine and merchant marine forces of the U.S.A.

THEY call in "Command Performance." It's a half-hour program, short-waved through 24 stations to our armed forces around the globe, not heard at all in the United States Unlike many movie titles, the title of this radio show describes it. "Your wish" says this short-wave show, "is our command."

The letters pour in to the 24 stations, go from there to a central office in Washington, are forwarded to Hollywood The letters come from camps in Ireland, in Egypt, in the Solomons, in Australia, in China, from ports over the world, from the high seas where men of the merchant marine defy the submarines of the Axis: "Please give us . . ."

The Hollywood Victory committee strives to please. One letter, from one service man anywhere, is sufficient to cause a Victory committee worker to make a note. Sooner or later—and as soon as possible—the object of that service man's flattery is on "Command Performance."

The programs are recorded here on Tuesday evenings, before audiences composed mainly of service men. The transcriptions are sent to the 24 stations for broadcast—on early Sunday mornings around the globe, when doughboys and gobs and marines and sailors have free time to listen.

SENATE ANGER GROWING OVER TREASURY JIBE

Committee Meets Today To Study Tax Morgenthau Called 'Inadequate.'

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — The senate finance committee meets today to consider tax legislation, with some members expected to demand that Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau be called to "explain" his attack on the committee's revision of the house tax bill.

Resentment against the treasury head's characterization of the bill as wholly inadequate appeared to be growing, with the result that the committee may abandon efforts to cooperate with treasury experts.

Some committee members, including Sens. Byrd (D.), Va., and LaFollette (R.), Wis., also were dissatisfied with major provisions of the bill although in disagreement as to the remedy.

Abandonment of the proposed 5 per cent "victory" modified gross income tax was expected to be sought, especially since the committee retained it in the bill by a vote of only 10 to 9.

A substitute plan of either boosting the individual income tax or adding a 5 per cent sales tax was expected to be proposed by Byrd. Revision of corporation taxes was sought by LaFollette.

Sen. Walter F. George (D.), Ga., invited Undersecretaries of War and Navy Patterson and Forrestal, respectively, and Chairman Land of the maritime commission to appear tomorrow to discuss revision of the renegotiations of contracts law.

They were reported to have agreed upon a modification, under which contracts costs of contractors would be scaled down but once. Under the law there can be repeated negotiation of contracts for a period of three years after the war.

Chairman George may also propose a 5 per cent overall profit limit on war contracts after taxes as a means of "taking the profit out of war."

The treasury submitted revised estimates to the effect that the senate tax would raise $8,591,100,000 additional taxes, but that this would be reduced to a net gain of $6,851,700,000 because of post-war rebates.

LOS ANGELES POLICE HUNTING FIENDISH SLAYER OF WOMAN, 75

(By International News Service)

LOS ANGELES—Police today sought the fiendish slayer of a 75-year-old woman whose bruised and battered body was found last night in South Park only a short distance from her home where her husband awaited her return from church services.

The victim was Mrs. Lillian Stratton. Her husband, S. M. Stratton, 81, learned of his wife's death after a neighbor used his phone to call an ambulance. Curious as to the commotion in the park near his home, Stratton walked over to the group and identified the slain woman as his wife.

Investigators reported that a soldier and his girl friend shortly before the body was discovered had seen Mrs. Stratton crossing the street. Later they saw a man and a woman on the park lawn.

Deep finger marks, bruises and lacerations were found on the elderly woman's throat and face. Her shoes were discovered about 30 feet from where her body was found and the string of beads which she wore was broken and strewn about the lawn, indicating that a struggle had taken place before she had been overcome and dragged into the shadows of the park by her assailant.

ALL'S CALM

Violence Missing as Peace Group Vies With War Show.

CLEVELAND —(INS)— War and peace met in Cleveland during the week-end as Jehovah's witnesses jammed public hall to hear "Peace—Can It Last?" while the local citizenry flocked to the army war show, and today no evidence of strife remained.

Despite the ideological conflict, police said that no violence had been reported at the key convention of the religious sect in Cleveland.

At the closing session of the witnesses' convention, C. R. Hessler, a field worker for the group, condemned as "so much ballyhoo," Mayor Frank J. Lausche's recommendation that Clevelanders should avoid the convention.

Witnesses were advised by Percy Chapman, a field representative, to remain neutral in the conflict "that has been brought on the world by Satan" and to neither advocate nor fight for either side.

Clevelanders, however, took Mayor Lausche's advice and more than 183,000 visited the army war show.

Up and Down THE STREET

An item from Hollywood gives an idea of how Louis Bromfield can tie into writing when his mind is not distracted by farm chores and speechmaking. It's about the script he wrote for the motion picture version of "For Whom the Bell Tolls," and there's 170 pages of typewritten manuscript, completed in little more than a month. Here's how—as the word comes straight from Hollywood: "Bromfield worked on the script 17 hours a day seven days a week." Can you imagine that!

Don Rettig, 204 Orange street, wants to believe everyone is honest. In fact, he will rather doubt the patriotism of the person who finds his lost war savings stamps and fails to return them. Don is a News-Journal carrier. While passing papers last week, in the vicinity of East Fourth and Purdy streets he lost a manila envelope containing approximately $8.20 in war stamps. To aid this youngster who is contributing his earnings to the war effort, the finder is urged to return the stamps to The News-Journal office or to the boy's home.

Mansfield outdoor authorities are predicting that the show of color in the woodlands this fall will be the brightest in a long time. They point to the heavy rainfall during the late summer and the fact that the leaves have remained green longer than usual, giving them a good start toward a colorful fall season. Lack of rainfall last summer and fall caused the leaves to turn brown and drop off before they colored their usual reds and yellows, the outdoorsmen say.

"I think the victory honk is a fine idea," Mrs. Dovenbarger writes, "but why not add a thank you note—possibly two short peeps. It seems to me a thank you honk would be a courteous gesture just as it is in speaking. Incidentally, I think this (up-and-down) column is one of the most interesting features in the paper. SPOILED BY RAIN

Civil Air Patrol Mobilization To Be Held Next Sunday.

Intermittent rains and a low ceiling yesterday resulted in postponement until next Sunday of a mobilization aerial program at municipal airport of Civil Air Patrol group No. 515.

ACTS TO OPEN ROLLS TO MEN NOW IN ARMY

Convention Decides To Ask Congress to Amend Charter To Admit New Vets.

(By International News Service)

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—The American Legion, assembled at its 24th annual convention, was on record today as giving its full support to President Roosevelt in the prosecution of the war and for taking steps to bring the men who will fight World war 2 into Legion membership.

By opening its membership to the men of this war, the Legion, now composed of 1,130,000 veterans of the conflict of 1917-18, conceivably could become one of the most influential veterans' organizations in all history. The war now raging probably will involve millions of American fighting men.

Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the war production board, was one of the scheduled speakers at today's final session of the Legion's streamlined, three-day conclave.

The Legion expressed "complete confidence and faith" in President Roosevelt's leadership.

To win the war, the Legion said in a "declaration of principles," industry, labor, agriculture and government must make comparable contributions and sacrifices. Persons, groups and organizations "must not be permitted to use the war as a vehicle for their advantage."

"We regard strikes, cessation of work, lock-outs and discrimination in employment as sabotage," the declaration added.

The Legion condemned religious prejudices and racial or national antagonisms as "weapons of our enemies" and called for a united people, with a single purpose, steadfast for victory.

By a conclusive vote, the Legion adopted a resolution resolving that the convention petition congress to amend the Legion's charter "so that veterans who have served in the naval or military services of the United States in the second World war" may be eligible to membership in the Legion. This was one of the most important matters brought before the convention.

A flock of other resolutions were adopted. The convention went on record as:

1—Praising J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI and his associates for "the outstanding services they are rendering in the fight against espionage, sabotage and subversive activities."

2—Reaffirming the Legion's faith in the work of the Dies committee and urging congress to maintain and finance the committee.

3—Favoring suspension of naturalization of enemy aliens for the duration of the war.

4—Advocating further restriction of "after the war" immigration by lowering the existing quotas of all nations and races

5—Condemning the use of the franking privilege by senators and representatives for the distribution of articles and speeches "subversive and un-American in their character."

Suggest Magnets To Remove Needle In Child's Heart

PITTSBURGH — (INS) — Magnets were suggested today as a medium for removing the sewing machine needle imbedded in the heart muscles of tiny three-year-old Eleanor Hughes, a patient in Children's hospital.

After a 90-minute operation Friday failed to recover the needle, Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company offered use of its large magnet. Samuel Berman, a New York engineer, also offered his electro-magnetic probe, which he said was used successfully to locate shrapnel in victims of the Pearl Harbor attack.

Doctors meanwhile concentrated their energies in re-building Eleanor's strength for another operation. The little, brown-eyed girl fell on the needle while playing in her home in nearby Clinton eight days ago.

SIEGE GUNS AND PLANES HAMMER AT STALINGRAD

Nazis Advance Yard by Yard Over Own Dead in Desperate Effort to Take City.

trembled, as if by earthquake. No one sound really was audible. The roar of cannon, the crack of rifles, the firing of machine guns and the bursting of bombs were submerged in the noise of them all, a deafening, terrifying sound that never ceased.

Bombs fell in a steady rain and huge gaps in Stalingrad's skyline gradually merged. German long-range artillery and bombers were giving Stalingrad the heaviest punishment a Russian city had ever taken in this war, and that included Sevastopol, where nothing remained but ruins.

(The Exchange Telegraph agency quoted Pravda that the Germans were losing such enormous numbers that they were unable to evacuate their wounded or bury their dead. German advances of a dozen yards were often slippery with the blood of casualties.)

The enemy literally advanced over the bodies of his own dead, but was incessantly throwing new regiments and divisions, fresh tank columns and new airplane squadrons into the battle.

Now the battle raged in a semicircle, southwest, west and northwest of Stalingrad The Germans had thrown their main weight onto the northwestern fringes, where they had penetrated several streets, but elsewhere, dispatches said, they had not advanced beyond the near approaches.

Dry, sandy roads favored the attackers, but the Russians exploited numerous ravines, rapidly filling with masses of wrecked enemy tanks and machines.

(German dispatches recently have been saying that heavy rain was one reason the capture of Stalingrad was taking so long.)

The defenses consist of several belts of closely masked and fortified points.

In the Mozdok area of the eastern Caucasus, Soviet units repulsed several enemy attacks, the noon communique said. The Germans had broken across the Terek river, in a drive toward the Grozny oil fields, near Mozdok and had suffered heavily German Field Marshal Ewald Von Kleist was killed in that area and his first tank army suffered heavy losses.

Southeast of Novorossisk, the Black Sea naval base, Soviet trench mortar units repulsed several attacks, the noon communique said. It also reported that the enemy had counter-attacked on one sector of the Karelian front and been repulsed with heavy losses. Probably most of the fighting on that sector was with the Finns.

This was the 12th day of the German general attack on Stalingrad

Pravda reported exceptionally heavy fighting south of Voronezh, 350 miles northwest of Stalingrad, where the Russians several days ago opened an offensive.

Yesterday the Germans counter-attacked eight times without results. On other sectors, the Russians pushed ahead, overcoming desperate Hungarians.

The Soviet air force pounded steadily at enemy reinforcements pouring toward the Voronezh area. It was expected to become a most important area this fall and winter.

On the Sinyavino sector of the Volkhov front, the Russians still retained the initiative, having opened an offensive several weeks ago to wider the land passage to besieged Leningrad

The Germans were reported feverishly strengthening their defenses in that area and protecting their vital communications. Fresh enemy reserves of infantry, supported by tanks and dive bombers, vainly counter-attacked.

Four Allied Planes Downed, Says Rome

Allied Planes Return To Blast At Tobruk

CAIRO—(AP)—Fires visible 30 miles were started by RAF heavy and medium bombers which attacked the Axis supply port of Tobruk, more than 300 miles west of the Egyptian battlefront, on Saturday night, a British communique reported today.

The raid was the principal feature of the week-end in the north African theater as the opposing ground forces remained inactive except for minor patrol skirmishes and artillery exchanges.

British fighters and bombers also were active over the battle lines yesterday, shooting down at least two enemy planes Two other Axis planes were reported shot down over Sicily by British fighters operating from Malta and schooners east of Tripoli were attacked with some success.

Claim Capture of Two Caucasus Towns

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts)—(AP)—The German high command announced today that Nazi troops driving toward the rich Grozny oil fields in the eastern Caucasus had stormed and captured the towns of Terek and Vladimirovka

(Vladimirovka is 90 miles northeast of Grozny and approximately the same distance from the shores of the Caspian It is north of the Terek river

Several Soviet attacks northwest of Voronezh, on the northern flank of the Stalingrad front, and southeast of Lake Ilmen and south of Lake Ladoga were defeated, the high command declared.

British Close In On Madagascar Capital

LONDON —(UP)— Lieut. Gen Sir William Platt, British commander in chief of East Africa, said today in a communique that his forces were closing in on Tananarive, capital of Madagascar.

He said the British had occupied the "important railroad junction" of Brackaville, east of the island capital.

British troops were moving in on Tananarive, from the northwest, and were reported advancing southwest of Ankazobe, less than 30 miles from the capital

Ankazobe, described in Platt's communique as an important position, was taken Saturday after a short engagement.

Finland Asks For Security Guarantee

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The Finnish minister to the United States has taken notice of suggestions that Finland and Russia sign peace terms and his reaction is

"Finland wants to cease fighting as soon as the threat to her existence has been averted and guarantees obtained for her lasting security."

The minister, Hjalmar J. Procope, issued the statement after a press reception Saturday night. The timing, while the Russians still held off the Germans in the Caucasus, and the circumstances led to speculation in diplomatic quarters whether Finland might be, at least, putting out a feeler on possible peace terms

U. S. Planes Smash Japs In China

CHUNGKING —(AP)— American airmen made 23 bombing raids on Japanese installations in occupied China, French Indo-China and Burma in July and August, shot down 28 Japanese planes and probably six more and destroyed 30 enemy craft on the ground without the loss of a single bomber in combat.

These figures were given in a summary today by Lieut. Gen Joseph Stilwell's headquarters which listed the loss of five American fighters during the two month period. The pilot of one fighter was known to be safe, it added.

The Chinese air force provided ground personnel for the American planes and the Chinese air warning service contributed considerable aid.

The bomber crews and technical personnel were all of the U. S. Army Air Force, as were the fighter pilots, including a small number of "Flying Tigers" who joined up after the AVG was disbanded on July 4.

Wait New Jap Attack On Solomon Islands

WASHINGTON—(UP)—The battle of the Solomon islands today was believed approaching the crucial stage.

Reinforced American occupation forces are prepared for an expected attack by the most formidable Japanese elements yet thrown into the struggle.

A powerful enemy naval task force, which fled from the vicinity of the Solomons after being attacked just a week ago by army Flying Fortresses, probably is readying for another attempt to invade the American-dominated waters—if it is not already steaming toward them

The big American bombers reported possible hits on two battleships but did not stay long enough to confirm this because of the tremendous anti-aircraft barrage thrown up by the enemy.

Intercepted northeast of Tulagi, one of the southeastern Solomon islands in American hands, the enemy fleet—which included battleships as well as cruisers—fled to the north

It was believed here that the army bombers caught the Japanese naval force when it was waiting for other ships, presumably a fleet of transports before undertaking the enemy's third major drive to retake the strategically important islands.

While conservatives and liberals generally kept their previous positions, the Nazi groups hardly took part in the elections.

SENATE STARTS DEBATE TODAY ON PRICE BILL

House Consideration of Its Inflation Control Plan To Begin Tomorrow.

set in his "you-do-it-or-I-will" message to congress of Sept. 7.

With this rapid-fire timetable in mind, the administration mustered forces in a confident attempt to beat off expected farm block amendments which would boost by 46 per cent the lowest level at which price ceilings could be applied to agricultural products

Under terms of both house and senate measures, the president would be authorized to suspend present provisions of law which prevent the fixing of farm prices at less than 110 per cent of parity

As both bills were approved by the banking committees, the president could order farm prices held at approximately their Sept. 15 levels, which Brown said averaged about 107 per cent of parity. In no case, however, could the president order the maximum price of any commodity fixed at below 100 per cent of parity

However, Senator Bankhead (D., Ala.) has drafted an amendment which would move parity itself up 4.6 per cent by including the cost of hired farm labor in the factors by which it is computed. The president has said he was "unalterably opposed" to this."

As a concession to the farm bloc, the senate committee wrote into its measure a direction to the president to lift ceilings where he found such action necessary to meet increased farm labor costs Brown said he thought this provision was "satisfactory" to the farm leaders.

The house and senate bills also would provide for 90 per cent parity loans on many crops, instead of 85 per cent loans now being made.

Wage and salary provisions of the two bills differed in some respects although their general objective was to level off pay scales at the highest mark they had reached between Jan. 1 and Sept. 15 of this year.

NEBRASKA SETS PACE FOR SCRAP

Challenges Rest of Nation By Collecting 104 Pounds For Everyone in State.

hand. But they have now hardly more than 2 weeks' supply.

The government wants 17 million tons of scrap collected between now and Jan 1, when war production reaches its peak.

The Nebraskans scoured their state by counties, cities, towns, villages, farms. In three weeks, bringing in everything from hairpins found in a dead bird's nest to old tractors and concrete-mixers, they collected 136,171,012 pounds (68,000 tons) of scrap, or close to 104 pounds for every one of the 1,315,000 persons in the state.

The secret of their success was organization set in motion by Nebraska newspapers that had been stirred to action by the fact that there was scrap all around. but it wasn't moving to the scrap piles. People weren't looking for it, or they had lost interest in looking because what they gathered was not picked up.

When the drive was over one newspaper stated:

"Nebraskans could say that no state had done so well, by a third, in all the months since Pearl Harbor as Nebraska did in three weeks.

"If this could be repeated in 47 states our nation would present so strong a front to the enemy, such unity in war effort, that the day of victory would be brought much nearer."

Here's How To Dispose of Scrap

Barrels and other large containers were being set up at filling stations in Mansfield today to receive scrap metal and rubber from homes in the city.

Meanwhile, Carl L Stough, county salvage chairman, said collections will be made every Friday in the future in Mansfield because not enough calls have been received at county civilian defense headquarters to warrant collections every day.

Telephone number at defense headquarters is 3763-6, and city or Madison township residents with scrap to sell of contribute should call that number. A truck will call for the scrap Friday.

Stough said collections outside Mansfield had mounted to more than 265 tons today. Because of the increasing demand for old metal, the scrap must be sold now in 50-ton lots and must not be permitted to pile up in huge quantities, he said.

Donations of scrap materials, including metal, rubber, paper, and rags, have provided more than $300 for the Richland Civic Victory committee for going-away parties for selectees and Christmas gifts for Richland countians in the armed forces.

TIRPITZ BACK AT SEA, REPORT

Giant Nazi Battleship Raids Arctic Convoy Lanes, London Hears.

command reported that Nazi planes and submarines had sunk 38 merchantmen in a six-day running battle with a 45-ship convoy in the Arctic.

While the German claims were characterized here as exaggerated, unofficial sources believed that losses on the Russian supply route undoubtedly have been heavy.

Thus far the Tirpitz — the mightiest, most costly unit in the German navy—has played an entirely negative part in the war.

In June, 1941, she was reported damaged during a Russian aerial attack on the once free city of Danzig. In March, 1942, she was spotted off the Norwegian coast by the British, attacked by torpedo planes and driven to shelter.

The reported reappearance of the Tirpitz followed by only 24 hours a statement by First Lord of the Admiralty A. V. Alexander which indicated that Britain's newest 35,000-ton battleships, the Anson and the Howe, now are ready for action.

In a speech at Sheffield yesterday, Alexander declared that all Britain's losses in capital ships, aircraft carriers and cruisers had been matched by new construction.

Britain's naval losses in the last 27 months have included four capital ships, four aircraft carriers, 22 cruisers, between 80 and 90 destroyers and 38 submarines, Alexander said.

"Our country is infinitely more than a domain affording to those who dwell upon it immense material advantages and opportunities. In such a country we live. But I like to think of a glorious nation built upon the will of free men, set apart for the propagation and cultivation of humanity's best ideal of a free government and made ready for the growth and fruitage of the highest aspirations of patriotism. This is the country that lives in us—in our hearts and minds and consciences."—Grover Cleveland.

Crossing Elimination Project Lags

MORE than casual attention should be given the request that a 90-day extension of time be allowed for completion of the West Fourth street grade crossing elimination contracts.

Whatever legitimate causes there may have been for slow progress in recent months, it appears that a point was reached in early summer which would have permitted completion of the work well within the November 30 deadline specified in the contract, if a real effort had been made.

It should be taken into account that the closing of this important thoroughfare for almost a year and a half has not only caused serious inconvenience but has also resulted in heavy financial losses to many persons directly affected thereby.

The requested extension of time for completion of the roadways leading over the B. & O. tracks and under the Erie tracks would, in reality, mean going through another winter without access to this highway, which was far from the intent of city and county when they met requirements in sharing the cost of this project.

Division Engineer Vance T. Grimes, of the state highway department, is quoted as expressing belief that two traffic lanes over the route can be completed by the deadline date—and if this is possible it should certainly be insisted upon by officials upon whom responsibility rests.

Police Action Against Gambling

ONE PHASE of gambling, commercialized or otherwise, which is seldom taken into account, was brought to public attention in connection with belated police action closing five local bingo establishments.

It is the extent to which money needed for household purposes is squandered by crazed gambling addicts, men and women, who are unable to control themselves when confronted by fascinating gambling devices and who waste money that they can ill afford to lose.

Chief of Police Bell tells of complaints made by frantic wives whose husbands allowed family responsibilities to go by the board in order to satisfy their gambling craze, and of husbands who complained that their wives gambled away money needed to meet household expenses.

This is also noted in connection with operation of the numbers game, largely patronized by persons in the near-indigent class who are sometimes able to scrape together no more than a few pennies to patronize this despicable racket which has enriched several conscienceless operators in this community.

Now, possibly more than under ordinary conditions, when every available dime and dollar is needed for furtherance of the national war effort, waste of money through commercialized gambling schemes of all sorts should be discouraged to the fullest extent and expression of public approval should be accorded police acting along this line.

Fire Prevention Gains In Importance

WHATEVER importance ordinarily attaches to Fire Prevention week, which by presidential proclamation will start Sunday, October 4, is magnified this year by the fact that large fires are likely to seriously hamper war production and repairing damage done by even a small fire requires labor and material needed for other purposes.

Records show that fires take an annual toll of about ten thousand American lives, with property losses running into hundreds of millions of dollars—mostly caused by somebody's carelessness and with a large percentage classed as "preventable."

Surveys show that during the period of special emphasis on fire prevention week, fire losses fall 45.3 per cent, indicating what could be done if this were made a year-round effort instead of being confined to a single week.

In his proclamation of Fire Prevention week President Roosevelt said: "Any loss of human life, any interference with production, any loss of critical materials, hinders and impedes our war effort . . . it is essential that destructive fires be brought under stricter control in order that victory may be achieved at the earliest date."

But individual and community action to reduce fire hazards need not await Fire Prevention week and should not stop afterward. NOW is the time to take every possible precaution against fire.

Hotels Abandon 'American Plan'

FINIS "American plan." That is the suggestion made by Peter G. Economou, a Buffalo hotel man, looking for ways to help along the war by conserving food.

"I make this recommendation," he says, "because, through years of observation in the serving of table d'hote dinners, the return of uneaten food was so great that the thought of it, in view of the needs of our armed forces, is appalling.

Railroad dining cars found that out long ago. They had the added complication, so it is said, of hosts of college boys ordering the whole bill of fare. The price charged for the meal would not begin to cover it. Fixed price dinners still remain, but differ from the old "American plan" in that only one of the offered meat courses may now be taken, or one dessert. In the old days hardy souls would order, and consume, chicken, steak and pork, and never turn a hair.

So this time-honored American institution may be on its way out. It was a relic of pioneer times, when food was cheap and appetites abundant.

The meat shortage has also brought a change in pronunciation for the "minute" steak, with accent shifted from the first to the last syllable.

Some politicians insist that it's politics that "keeps the country going"—which leads to the question: "Going where?"

On a per capita basis you're supposed to have $94.95 in your pocket—but don't be disappointed if you fail to find it there.

Too Much 'Help' In Bureau Jobs

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—The success of the Bernard M. Baruch report in clearing the air on the rubber situation should be followed up in other lines in the hope of improving the war effort. A very able man with altruism equal to that of Mr. Baruch observed to a friend that efficiency in virtually all the government offices in Washington, and perhaps elsewhere, could be enormously increased by one simple order.

This order would be to reduce the number of persons employed in each bureau and agency by 70 per cent.

There was no humor whatever in the suggestion. Nor does it conflict with the wails one hears from many officials that they cannot get the trained personnel they require for the transaction of government business.

It is perfectly true, for instance, that there is a shortage of stenographers. So much so that there has been a drive to force colored girls into such places. This has been fiercely resisted by officials who distinctly did not want colored office help. But that is another story.

The question here is whether there would still be a shortage of stenographers if the personnel in each office were reduced 70 per cent. Behind this criticism, of course, is the fact that a tremendous amount of utterly useless work is being done—paper work, with much overlapping, duplication and waste of time, energy and patience, not to mention the enlarged demand for paper and envelopes, typewriters and adding machines, to make this duplication, overlapping and waste possible.

SAVING all this would be enormously helpful, in more ways than at first seem possible. Perhaps the most important of all would be the saving of time and wasted energy on the part of men who come to Washington to do business with the government in some phase of war production. It was largely observation of what happened in such instances that occasioned the 70 per cent reduction suggestion.

The overlapping and duplication, and some of the wasted work as well, result in such visitors being shunted from one office to another. So many offices have to do with each detail of war production that this is not surprising. But it sometimes results in not only wasting the visitor's time, but in his going home, after having discussed his problem and gotten advice from say three officials, without ever seeing the one offical whom he should have seen in the first place!

Then he goes back to his airplane factory, or little machine shop trying to fit in with war production, and waits the expected directions, which do not come.

TOO many different offices are going through the same motions on the same subjects. This is made more confusing, not only to visitors but to persons living here whose business it is to keep in touch, by the frequent shake-ups and reorganizations. Mr. A in one agency may think he has settled a visitor's problem, and certainly the visitor thinks so, but when the visitor comes back after a wasted month to find out what happened he finds Mr. A is no longer there, the office in which A was has been renamed and is now doing something else, and no one remembers anything about his case!

Man About Manhattan

Stork History

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Sherman Billingsley, a soft-spoken, hard-boiled, blue-eyed ex-grocer's clerk from Oklahoma, is the sole owner of the world's most famous night-club—the Stork!

To have the most famous establishment of this kind means that more people must think about it, talk about it, and spend their money in it than any other. In that field of "class" restaurants where people of the social, theatrical and sporting worlds congregate, including Twenty-one, the St. Regis and El Morocco, the Stork easily leads.

Why is this? Who is Billingsley? What makes the Stork?

SHERMAN BILLINGSLEY is a man who has been to some big towns and heard him some big talk. He was born in the Will Rogers country of Oklahoma. He murders the King's English. He is married to Hazel Donnelly, a police captain's daughter and a former Ziegfeld show girl, and they have two daughters, 6 and 16. Billingsley used to live in California. Once he worked in Omaha, Toledo and West Virginia. In Detroit he became a grocer's clerk.

When he came to New York he operated a chain of drug stores in the Bronx before he became a real estate dealer and built Billingsley Terrace, which is very much in evidence today, and also a number of warehouses and garages, one of which is shamelessly named the Sherman garage, after himself.

"Liquor was the big item in drug stores in those days (prohibition)," recalls Sherman. "The prescription business invariably gave you your investment back in a few months."

ONE day two of Billingsley's former pals from Oklahoma blew into town with an idea of opening a restaurant where you could buy a drink or two. The name for such a place was speak-easy. They had a little dough, but being new to the town they wanted Billingsley to go in with them. They gave him a third of the business just to keep them company, and thus the first (there have been three) Stork club was born.

The first Stork opened its doors at 132 West 58th street and did a fair business until the government stepped in with an old law that had been exhumed in the interest of prohibition and confiscated the place.

The Stork then moved to 51 East 51st street. Billingsley's two partners, meanwhile, so the story goes, became homesick and fled back to Oklahoma, leaving Billingsley the business, which he paid for. One of the partners could not stand women who painted their faces and wore eccentric clothes. The sight of these damosels in the club every night increased his loneliness for the cow country.

WHILE Billingsley had the Stork at this location an incident occurred that altered his entire outlook on show business. Texas Guinan, the loud, gaudy "Hello Sucker" kid came in and introduced Billingsley to a Broadway columnist whose name was Walter Winchell. Shortly thereafter Winchell wrote in his column, "The Stork club is the New Yorkest place in town." Billingsley recalls that next night the place was overrun with people who wore real ermine and who had authentic Florida sun tans. It was his first experience with "class" trade, and he never forgot it.

All this took place at 51 East 51st street. When repeal drove the speaks out of small rooms behind closed doors, Billingsley found his present place, No. 3 East 53rd, and it is at this address that New York history has been made.

Must Defeat Japs On Home Island, They Battle With Fanatical Fury

—By DE WITT MACKENZIE

FORMER AMBASSADOR JOSEPH C. GREW, in declaring that the Japs are tougher than the Germans and will fight until utterly crushed, is trying to hammer home a truth which only in recent days has begun to register widely in this country.

We started this war with a good many people suffering from distorted ideas about Nippon's vulnerability. Back at the time of Pearl Harbor a reader wrote me a letter which was rather typical of a lot of current comment. He pooh-poohed my statement that the Japanese were hard eggs, and bragged:

"I've lived in the Orient and know my Japs. I'm only five feet four, but I never saw the day when I couldn't lick half a dozen of them, with one hand tied behind my back."

Now along comes Mr. Grew, who served as our representative among these barbarians for a decade, to say that they "will not crack morally or psychologically or economically" and that "only by uter physical destruction or utter exhausion of their men and materials can they be defeated." At the same time we are getting from the steaming jungle battlefields of the southwest Pacific islands grim proof of the fanatical willingness of the mikado's men to die.

When our marines made their daringly successful invasion of Guadalcanal, not one of the many hundreds of Japs who were holding that island surrendered. Each went down in death.

YES, the worshippers of the rising sun will take a lot of beating. What then is the basic strategy which will give best results? Let's get at it this way:

The heart of Nippon's strength, in all categories, lies in the homeland—Japan proper. There are her arsenals, her manpower, her financial resources. All this is contained within an area of 148,756 square miles—about the size of Montana. And the borders aren't protected by other territories, but only by the sea.

So the strength of this primitive Samson is localized. We don't have to overrun a territory the size of say Australia—a mighty task for any nation—to do our stint. We don't have to reconquer all the Japanese conquests as a preliminary. Our primary task is to cut Samson's locks, whereupon his big body will lose its power.

Therefore I believe that when the major Allied offensive against the Japanese gets under way, it will strike primarily at the heart of the empire—Japan proper—rather than start at the circumference with the idea of reclaiming the hodge-podge of Nipponese conquests piece-meal in order to reach the homeland.

THE MAIN Allied objective is, or so I assume, to fight in Japan proper. We shall approach this operation by first bombing hell out of that neatly arranged concentration of resources. We shall pulverize the island's industries and transportation system until finally we are ready to put an army ashore for the kill.

Once Japan proper is conquered, the rest of the ill-gotten empire will succumb. That doesn't mean there won't be much fighting outside Japan. There will be, and it's going on right now. But our main task will be done when we have just about wiped the mikado's kingdom off the map.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—With the back-to-school movement in full swing, U. S. office of Education officials are up to their pedagogic chins in a teacher shortage situation that threatens to outstrip the crisis of 1917-18.

In those years 125,000 inexperienced teachers were rushed into the breach, but the ranks still were 50,000 short of requirements. Dr. Benjamin W. Frazier, USOE specialist in teacher training, says that the educational crisis ahead is even worse than that.

In May, 1941, the shortage of vocational agricultural teachers was already developing. Now all 48 states are reporting serious shortages in that branch of instruction. Even before faculties checked in for the present fall term, 28 states had reported shortages in teachers of industrial arts and trades. The most serious situation apparently exists in high school special and vocational subjects and in rural elementary schools.

FLORIDA reports that elementary schools in 13 counties, high schools in 19, will be short of teachers before January. Kentucky says approximately 4,000 teachers, or 20 per cent, will not return this fall. South Carolina has lost more than 50 per cent of its vocational agricultural teachers.

Those are just samples of what is going on. They do not, however, indicate the dilemma faced by many war industry communities that have mushroomed without even adequate school building facilities, much less a teacher reserve.

The causes, of course, are the heavy demands of the armed forces and the heavy drawing power of bigger salaries in war industries.

THE office of education wasn't caught napping when the states began to scream for help. The office's wartime commission committee on teacher supply and demand had been studying the situation for a long time. They can't pull qualified teachers out of thin air, but they are making a lot of suggestions that help.

In the first place, they say, get salaries up to where they compete with those in the war industries.

In the second place, give those teachers retired because of marriage a break.

Other suggestions already put into practie cin many forward-looking states are: recall retired instructors still mentally and physically competent; drop the bars against "out-of-state" teachers; issue emergency certificates "good for the duration" (29 states already have done this); and offer refresher courses for former teachers who are willing to help the war effort by returning to their desks.

Eyes Require Care All Through Life.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

WHEN SHALL I take my child for his first visit to the oculist?"

Answering this question in his Presidential Address on "Lifelong Care of the Eyes" before the section on eye diseases at the American Medical association, Dr. Lawrence T. Post of St. Louis advises that it is well to test the vision between the third and fourth years and to make a superficial examination for external disease at that time, but that the first thorough examination should be made at the start of the second grade in school, because it is then that the child really begins to use his eyes for prolonged class work and a complete checkup of the external muscles of the eyes and of the refraction is indicated at this time.

Naturally if there are indications of poor vision, near sightedness or cross eyes before then an examination is indicated, but Dr. Post is referring above to the child who appears to be normal, who does not complain of headache or blurred vision, etc.

Regular Examination Helpful.

This idea of the child going to the oculist regularly as he goes to the dentist is somewhat of a new one, but is quite in line with the great modern movement of child hygiene. That it is based on the old saw that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure goes without saying, but there is also the knowledge we now have, that not only child hygiene is at stake, but also adult hygiene.

Many an adult has a permanently crippled dental arch because no one paid attention to the decay in his sixth year tooth, thinking it was only "another baby tooth," and many a man or woman has gone through life with half the vision they should have because eyes were not carefully tested in the early school years.

After the first examination, the school physician should make a yearly check and the child questioned about the symptoms of eye strain, and the oculist should make an examination every two years.

Dangerous Toys.

For the period of childhood it should be remembered also that one of the frequent dangers is injury to the eyes. Most of these are due to dangerous toys, especially air rifles. Within four months, Dr. Post relates, in his own practice he has seen four eyes destroyed by air rifles, there were five other in his university clinic, and two on the records of another doctor in the clinic. "I have yet to see useful vision retained in an eye that has been penetrated by a missle fired from these deadly toys."

Air rifles are entirely too dangerous to be placed in the hands of youngsters.

A Farmer's Diary

Curb Market

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I HELPED a farmer friend with his sales at the curb market—we were there very early, when long red streaks of clouds above the eastern hills foretold the sunrise. The large morning star was still visible, and the air was chill with fog, along the valleys.

Farmers and city peddlers had converged to unload their trucks and carts and big farm wagons. A businesslike confusion quickly brought to display great quantities of tempting vegetables and fruits, fresh eggs, dressed fowls and masses of colorful flowers.

In the next stall, the owner had made a fire. An oil drum, open below and partially at the top, served as a miniature furnace. Pieces of broken crate, cartons and waste paper were used as fuel. I felt the heat pleasantly from where we worked.

"More kinds of folks come to a place like this than go to a county fair," remarked my companion. "Everybody has to eat, and they all want things fresh and not picked over."

Our first customer was an Italian woman. She wore a heavy three-cornered shawl over her head and carried a deep basket. "Potato how mucha bush?" she asked. When he told her, she smiled, felt of the crisp new spuds and promised to come back soon. In ten minutes she was back and bought two pecks of potatoes. Quickly she took four articles from her basket—a ball of farmers' home-made cheese, a bunch of hot red peppers, a head of purple cabbage, and a string of garlic. My friend poured the potatoes into the empty basket and she arranged the other things on top.

The load was heavy for her, but just as she turned to go, I saw two fine looking young people, man and wife, about thirty, approach smiling broadly. The young man took the basket. "Now Mom," I heard the younger woman say, "Tony'll carry your basket. Why didn't you wait until we came by in the car?"

"And let all the good things be gone—and me not here!" the old woman said.

I sold a ministerial colored man a live barred pullet, a bunch of collards and a half peck of Jonathan apples. I put them into his poke, atop a tempting piece of thick, fat sow belly. I tied a paper about the pullet, and handed it to him.

A stocky German and his still more corpulent wife came sauntering up. They bought potatoes, sauerkraut, two chickens, schmiercase and a whole flitch of sidemeat. They laughed at my poor efforts to talk with them in their native Dutch.

Two children, a girl of 7 and boy of 5, came last. The little girl hunted in her ragged pocket for a nickel to buy flowers—"My mom's in the hospital," she said. The farmer chose the loveliest blooms left in the crock and gave them to her. "Keep your money," he said, "and get your mom something else."

UNFAIR ADVANTAGE +

CHAPTER XXX

"Maggard Center!" Amy and Marcia echoed together. And then, "Paul's cabin!"

"She was going there," Marcia said. Her lips quivered; she took her hand from the wheel and brushed it across her eyes. "I followed her, and frightened her! I was to blame!"

"There's no time for that now!" Amy said sharply.

The mountaineer pointed out a big log building back among the pines and green laurel bushes, the mission school. And a trim smaller building beside it, the mission hospital.

Frani was placed on a clean narrow iron bed in a clean white room, rosy with early morning sunlight. The mission doctor, middle-aged, kind, examined her and said: "It's a skull fracture; but I think she'll be all right."

Miss Tellington, the missionary, a strong plain woman, with a wise sweet smile, took them into her dining-room and gave them poached eggs and coffee for the grown-ups and foamy milk for Daphne. She arranged to send a messenger to the nearest telegraph station, Crampton Corners—five miles over the mountain.

"And we'll send a message to Mr. Bevan in his cabin," she told them.

"Paul!" Amy heard Marcia say. But Amy could not speak.

"I suppose you knew," Miss Tellington said. "Mr. Bevan has a three-day pass from camp. I believe it ends the day after tomorrow. And his sister timed her coming up here so that he could be here to help her get settled in his cabin. She was going to stay there for awhile with the little girl, I believe."

Marcia asked, "How far is the cabin?"

"Two miles up the creek," the missionary said, "but it would take you half a day to walk it. I'd let you take my horse but Mr. Bevan isn't there now. He didn't expect his sister until tonight and he's gone down to Crampton Corners to meet her. You'd better get some sleep—both of you."

She gave them clean little narrow rooms in the mission hospital—Daphne a room next to her mother's, and Marcia and Amy a room together. Amy flung off her dress and stretched out on her narrow antiseptic-smelling cot and went to sleep almost instantly, into a queer land of jumble where she and Marcia were driving, driving, driving—along a long road that unwound endlessly before them . . . No, she was not with Marcia either—she was sitting beside Paul. He was driving—but they were safe. He was safe because she would always be with him. She was safe because his arm was around her.

There was laughing and chattering. She opened her eyes then and saw, through the slit in the window curtains, the bright light above the high jagged horizon and the shadow in the valley. Children were going home from school.

She fell asleep and did not awaken until she heard the voice of Bennet Ames. She opened her eyes. This was real. Through the curtain opening she saw a lantern swaying through the darkness of the school yard. She heard Dr. Ames voice, his sick-room voice, crisp, sure, oddly comforting, "He says it's a fracture but not a serious one. She'll be all right."

Amy reached for her dress in the darkness, pulled it over her head, and, still fastening it, opened the hall door. She saw Dr. Ames—and also Guy Dillingham. His face looked as it must have looked that night when he first saw Frani Bevan singing in a night-club. It was a look meant for Frani alone. Amy closed the door and stood behind it, ashamed.

But she could not help hearing through the thin, pine partition, Frani's cry, weak, imploring but somehow lovely, "Guy!"

There was silence then, long enough for a man to take a woman in his arms and hold her close. Then Frani's voice again.

"Daphne—where's Daphne?"

Then Guy's voice, deep, gentle, unintelligible. Then Frani murmuring in short, disjointed phrases, "I took her . . . I wanted her . . . I thought you'd come . . . but I didn't know . . . Mrs. Actling wrote to me . . . She said . . . oh, my head . . . I can't think . . . she said you took Amy to the theater."

It seemed to Amy that ever since she had known this family she had eavesdropped upon them unintentionally. But this eavesdropping had been worth while. It had drawn a line through everything Guy had said to her. Everything? . . . What was that he had said about a love that burned so fiercely it died of its own burning? It had not died. The angel of death, barely brushing it with his wings, had fanned it again into bright flame.

It was hours later that Frani asked for Amy and Marcia. They were sitting in the big, low raftered mission living-room before a fragrant fire. Miss Tellington was talking of her work and her school children, but Amy was only half hearing. She was listening for the clop-clop of horses' hooves on the stony mountain road that would mean Paul had returned. She knew Marcia was listening too—when Guy came in.

He looked white and tense, but exalted. "Frani wants to see you, Amy and Marcia. She asked for Paul, but he isn't here yet. I tried to make her wait; but she won't."

In the dim light of the bracket lamp on the wall of the hospital room Frani's face looked as white as the white bandage around her head. But her beautiful, long lashes lay dark against her cheeks and the curve of her mouth was lovely.

Guy sat quietly beside her taking her hand in his. When she opened her eyes and saw Amy and Marcia standing there she clutched Guy's hand tightly.

"I'm sorry, Amy," her husky voice quavered.

"Why—why, that's all right," Amy stammered.

"It couldn't be all right." Frani said sharply. "It couldn't! Paul loves you. And he's gone away. I have to make it right."

"You mustn't try now," Amy said. She couldn't look at Marcia. "We'll go now and see you in the morning."

She turned toward the door. But Frani called her back. "I must . . . It was my fault. I did it. Marcia has to know too."

"Be quiet now, dear." Guy said. But she clutched his hand tighter and went on.

"Paul didn't know about that announcement in the paper. He . . . Amy . . . I can't think. You tell them, Guy."

And so, as gently as he could, without looking at either of them Guy told the whole story and as he finished Frani's eyes closed and in the hush that lay upon the three of them they could hear her breathing.

Marcia put her hand to her mouth as though by touching her lips she could stop their trembling. She looked piteously at Frani sleeping there; then her eyes sought Guy's; then Amy's. She turned quietly and went out into the mountain night.

Amy was in bed when Marcia came in, much later. She had turned the light out. She thought Marcia might like it better that way. She had been right, for Marcia undressed without lighting the lamp.

Then Marcia spoke:

"Amy?"

"Yes."

"Please . . . I want you to know. I know you weren't to blame . . . I was very stupid. I don't know why—" A sob choked the sentence off.

When Amy awoke in the morning Marcia's bed was empty, the covers folded back with a neat air of finality. Amy did not need to have Miss Tellington inform her at the breakfast table that Marcia had left.

"She went before it was light," Miss Tellington said. "She didn't want to disturb you so she asked me to tell you. She said you were asleep when she decided. Dr. Ames had to get back to Cincinnati. He said Mrs. Dillingham was in no danger and that she was our doctor's patient anyway. Miss Fairbairne offered to drive him home . . . They're an attractive couple. He said he hoped to make her marry him before he goes to the army. He's been offerd a commission, Major, I think."

Amy set her coffee cup down suddenly. "He—what?"

Miss Tellington looked amused. "I know—it seems strange—his telling me. But in these times reserve is broken. One gets down to fundamentals. I suspect though that Dr. Ames is never long on reserve."

"No," Amy said. "He always blurts things out."

Her own reserve was so far gone she had barely refrained from saying, "I thought he wanted me." Now munching her toast in the sunny mission dining-room Amy was remembering things he said, giving them new meanings.

Queer how bits of one's life could be scattered like a picture puzzle. Then you found two pieces that fitted and put them together and, lo, the whole thing fitted.

"Was Mr. Paul Bevan here last night?" she inquired.

"Yes, he came in about midnight. He saw his sister and hurried away. He said he wouldn't be back until noon. But—" her laugh was one of gentle mischief—"I have a horse. I could have him brought up here and saddled in an hour. One of the school boys could guide you to the cabin."

While Amy waited outside for the horse the mountain children came straggling in to school. Daphne went out to meet them.

"It must be fun to be their teacher," Amy declared.

Miss Tellington's plain face kindled to beauty. "It is." And then impulively. "You have 'it', the thing good teachers have to have! I wish we had you here. Our best teacher has married and our young man teacher is in the army."

"I'll talk to you about it," Amy said quickly. Another piece of the puzzle fitted into place so easily that it took her breath away.

The boy whom Miss Tellington had asked to guide Amy to Paul's cabin rode ahead of her up the mountain stream that served as a roadway. The stream was wide and shallow. The water broke into sparkling splinters as the horse's hooves struck it. He was a patient old horse, used to walking in rocky stream beds, to scrambling up banks onto narrow trails. When her hat caught on an overhanging branch, dangled and fell into the water the horse stopped and waited because the boy stopped. The boy would have gone after it, but Amy shook her head and laughed as the current bore it swiftly away.

The sun was warm. It gilded the shining brown scrools of her hair. The air smelled of pines and warm, damp earth and rotted leaves. A tall laurel bush thrust a premature bud in her face, delicate pink, tightly closed like a tiny treasure box—as though it would say, "Just look and guess what I have for you later!"

A spiked twig caught at her silk stocking and tore a runner in it. She laughed at that too.

They passed a spare round-shouldered little woman, digging in the corner of a tip-tilted field. She smiled timidly and said, "Howdy."

Amy said, "Howdy," then she turned and called back gaily, "Howdy, neighbor."

Soon they came around a bend in the valley and the boy said, "There it is."

Across the stream she saw a house of grey logs crossed jaggedly at the corners and an ell with—of all things—diamond-paned windows. It had stone chimneys and a stone porch smothered in vines faintly frothed with green. A hazen of green lay over the trees on the ledges of the rocky cliff behind the cabin—and the barest suggestion of the red and purple and white of rhododendron.

Amy paid the boy, sent him back and splashed across the stream to the cabin alone. She hoped, as she dismounted and followed the path to the door, that Paul was not away. Her heart sank when there was no reply to her knock. But when she had almost given up and was ready to turn away she heard footsteps inside. Paul opened the door.

He looked just as he had the last time she'd seen him—that night at the theater—his shoulders broad under his uniform, the little crinkles at the corners of his eyes.

He held out his arms and she walked into them and pressed her face against his shoulder. He put his hand under her chin and would have lifted her face to kiss her, but she pushed his hand away.

"I have to cry a tear or two," she said in a faint voice.

A moment later she looked up at him. "All right. All clear signal," she announced.

Then she told him about Frani's confession to Marcia and herself, and of what Miss Tellington had said about Dr. Ames and Marcia.

"Perfect!" he exclaimed. "Now Marcia can endow things and organize things and establish foundations and clinics to her heart's content. It won't be for him personally. It'll only help him in his work."

Amy told him also about Miss Tellington's wanting her to teach in the school. "I'm going to take a position there," she said. "It pays eighty dollars a month. That'll keep me all through the war—until you come back."

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"That is one of the things I want to explain to you," I told her.

"I will hear nothing against Carolyn," she flared. "The child has told me how you all have persecuted her."

"Lillian! Lillian!" her husband chided. "This isn't like you—to hear only one side of a story. Won't you hear what Madge has to say?"

She looked up at me after a moment, her eyes brimming with tears.

"I never refused to listen to you yet, did I?" she asked me.

"Never," I told her emphatically, "and all I ask now is that you let me finish before you give your verdict."

"I won't interrupt," she said.

Harry rose and put Lillian into the chair, saying "I'll just take myself off."

"Why?" Lillian and I queried together, then added with one voice, "Don't go!"

"Nothing doing," the big man said. "This promises to be a discussion of vital importance, and any third person would be a handicap. But if you like, I'll take a seat just outside the door. Then if you need a referee, I can barge in."

Harry Leaves.

"I suppose that will have to do," Lillian said with disappointment, but I was secretly relieved. With even Harry only present, I could not say freely all the things I had to tell her.

Harry bent and kissed his wife tenderly, saying, "Remember Sweet, Madge and you have stood shoulder to shoulder through many emergencies. I don't believe either of you is going to fail the other now."

"I don't believe it either," she said chokingly, then added, "Please go and see how Carolyn is. Dicky is so—"

"I don't believe she's being tortured," he said dryly.

"Of course nobody's torturing her psysically," Lillian flared, "but you know how uncomfortable Dicky can make a person if he believes his baiting is needed, and Carolyn is very upset and sensitive."

Carolyn's Cunning.

To me this was proof that Carolyn had not told Lillian of how Dicky had been compelled to use force in removing her from the Weirhampton railroad station and into our car, and in the tying of her ankles. Marion's "roomie" had used cunning in her appeal to Lillian's sympathies.

Harry shot a keen look at me over his wife's head.

"I'll attend to the Dicky-bird" he said, "and see that neither he nor anybody else bothers Carolyn in any way."

"That's all I want," Lillian murmured and I mentally agreed, but for a different reason. This meant that the girl would be kept incommunicado until I could get in touch with my father, who alone must decide Carolyn's case.

Lillian Believes Carolyn.

"Ronald's looking awfully seedy," Harry said as he left. "Don't you think it would be a good idea to have him lie down awhile, if he will?"

"A very good idea, I said emphatically, and Lillian echoed my assent. So Ronald would know only that Lillian and Carolyn had attempted to leave the house. Carolyn would have no opportunity to see him.

Harry's departure was followed by several seconds of silence, then Lillian freed herself from my arms and stood erect, facing me.

"I have promised to listen to you, Madge," she said, "but I warn you that what you have to say had better be good, for I believe everything Carolyn has told me."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

FIGURING MATCH POINTS

Many duplicate players do not understand how "match points" are calculated in a pair tournament. Actually it is quite simple, when once the basic principle is learned. Knowing it should improve anybody's game on an occasional hand. In a nutshell, you get a match point whenever you beat another pair. The worst score on a deal gets you zero. If you beat one pair, you get one point; if you beat two pairs, two points; if you beat three pairs, three points, and so on. Consequently, each deal is as important as any other deal, for the same number of match points comes from it. That is the main difference between this game and total point play like rubber bridge—there are no "unimportant" deals.

Pair Nos N-S	Pair Nos E-W	Pl's Score N-S	Pl's Score E-W	M Pts N-S	M Pts E-W
1	4	920		5	3
2	6		50	2	5
3	1	450		3	0
4	3	980		6	1
5	5		300	0	6
6	7	480		4	4
7-	2		100	1	2

That table will furnish an example. It is the figuring on one deal of a duplicate. With North-South not vulnerable, the game bonus, to be added to the value of the tricks, is 300, and the small slam bonus 500. At the various tables, these were the respective results, with North or South the declarer in each case: 6-Clubs made, 6-Hearts down one, 4-Hearts bid and an extra trick made, 6-Hearts made, 7-Hearts doubled and down two, 4-Hearts bid and made six, and 7-Hearts down two not doubled.

Notice how the worst North-South score, of down 300, got North-South pair 5 no match points, how the next worst of down 100 got pair 7 only 1 point for beating one pair, how the next worst of down 50 produced two match points, and so on. Also notice how the worst East-West score, for East-West pair 3, against whom North-South scored 980, produced no match points for East-West pair 3, and so on.

When two pairs are tied for the same score, they split the match points which would have been awarded if they were not tied. Thus a tie for bottom and next to bottom, or for the 0 and 1 spots, would give each a half a point. Likewise a tie for the 4 and 5 positions would give the tied pairs 4½ match points each. If three pairs are tied, at the 4, 5 and 6 spots, they each get 5. Here you have the entire method of match point scoring for a pair game.

HOROSCOPE

FOR TUESDAY, SEPT. 22

According to the lunar and mutual aspects governing the affairs of this day all things may be expected to move at a particularly high tempo attended by confusion, excitement and upheaval. While well-directed energies might be turned into constructive channels the prospect of this is slight. Protect property from loss or theft.

Those whose birthday it is may be on the threshold of a year in which their own recklessness and turbulent energies, faculties and emotions may combine to frustrate and negate any desired efforts in a constructive direction. Travel and change may be perilous.

A child born on this day should be ardent, erratic, impulsive and passionate, with difficulty in directing affairs to productive channels.

Co-Eds Find That War Days Change College Styles

By CLAIRE BEACH

Fashion is always peeking around corners and today's peek finds autumn—and college days—in view once more.

War days have brought sobering sense to the college girl in the matter of clothes. Fall fashions reveal that the days of silly, sloppy clothes are gone. They're wearable and practical now and they'll be just as "right" when college days are over. That's a consideration these days.

Durable coats and suits, for instance, show the trend. They're in plain and plaid tweeds to mix and match. Date dresses at one recent college fashion show had a timeless look. Black crepe seems a leader. Purple is a new highnote for college wear. One purple dress in wool was very effective with matching sequin flowers on the shoulder.

Shorts Are Longer.

With cool weather coming along knees are not going to be quite so exposed for the wearers of shorts. Shorts are getting longer, oddly enough. Smart ones are in black and white checks, to go with a black sweater worn under a white shirt, for warmth.

War names are coming also into style for college clothes. Take the "doughboy trench coat," modeled on the regulation military trench coat, and the "Churchill jacket," a double-breatsted woolen plaid in brown and blue, topping brown flannel slacks.

Plaids Good.

Plaids are still very good. They've even been extended to slacks, shown with a vest of the same material, and a teddy bear "paddock coat" lined with quilted plaid.

A way to save money for the purchase of war bonds would be to acquire a new bathrobe which can double for a sports coat. It's a biege gaberdine robe made like a polo coat and reaching just below the knees. It's a natural.

And getting down to basic facts, take a Russian nightgown of flannelette with cross-stitch embroidery. Or quilted cotton sleep coats in gay colors, just the thing for cold, cold night. For the modern there is the lounging outfit of red and white polka dot rayon crepe with a blue quilted knee-length coat.

All in all, the college clothes picture is bright—and very sensible. No glitter but plenty of substance, you'll be glad to know.

Season's First Big Week-End Ahead For Collegians

Sport Podge by REX HESS

By DON LINDSAY

It has been a long time (not as the governor of North Carolina said to, etc., etc.,) since anyone has had to go to bat for your old Podger, Rex Victor Hess.

Something more than a year, it seems.

Your old Podger has become a casualty of the budding football season, He wasn't hurt in scrimmage, or anything like that—just watching scrimmage.

Which is a long way of saying that he has a cold—but good, and that's bad. (No cracks about how bad this column is either, because no one is going to argue that it's good—not even I.)

* * *

It seems that Hess has a definite routine for covering football season. It even includes getting colds. However, so that the colds won't interfere too much with football coverage, the Podger arranges to have his colds early in the season and then, after recovery, is in shape for the crucial games.

It seems to be just a matter of getting into condition, even as it is with football players. You know, a player's resistance isn't so good early in the season, but he gets tougher as the season goes on.

Why shouldn't it be the same with football writers?

* * *

If Hess needs aught beside a cold
To make him feel any worse
It ought to be beyond a doubt
This rank attempt at verse.

Which reminds me that the last time I tried writing a column for Hess, I had to call in help (Ken Woodman, it was) to do the doggerel. This time I am doing it myself. A fellow ought not try his hand at sports columning more than once a year, I can see—look what it does to him.

* * *

Woodman, however, has as good a memory as I have about that doggerel proposition, and without being asked to contribute anything, just ups and does.

Says Woodman:

"Rex, the podger, today is ill,
"Leaving us in a pickle dill."

* * *

All right, so that's just as bad as mine, But there's truth in it, brothers, there's truth in it.

* * *

Personal Note to Ned Brooks: Maybe it wasn't you talking into the mike at the time, but it hardly seems to be either cricket or football to let partisanship creep into announcing of plays over the public address system at Stadium field.

Friday night, someone said, "Come on, let's go, Tygers" into the mike.

Which seems to me to be in bad taste. I thought the PA system was to announce what was transpiring on the field—not what someone would like to see happening.

Let's use the PA system to keep the fans posted on the play, the down, the position of the ball, etc. But let's let the fans do their own cheering.

Bears Edge All-Stars In Finale

Eastern Army Loses to Pro Champs in Fourth Period.

(By International News Service)

BOSTON—They played — and lost— their last game of football, a sport they love, for the duration at Boston yesterday but today, as they prepared to start a ten day furlough, the boys from all parts of the country, who comprise the eastern army All-Star team, were happy in the knowledge they and their Western Army colleagues had raised approximately a quarter of a million dollars for the Army Emergency Relief fund.

This was revealed today by Ray McCarthy, co-ordinator of sports for the war department, who was among those who witnessed the Army's first defeat in three starts, at the hands of the Chicago Bears, 14 to 7, at Fenway Park yesterday.

The boys, under the direction of Col. Bob Neyland, former University of Tennessee coach, have done a grand job on the gridiron but are even more anxious to get into the biggest job of their lives—World War the 2nd. They intend to finish that one, quickly, too—you can bet on that.

Dave Allerdice, former Princeton star who had to return to his air station at Louisiana, probably summed up their feelings best when he said: "You can't get it finished until you get it started."

It was too bad the boys couldn't go away with a perfect slate but in their final appearance they just ran into the biggest football juggernaut ever assembled.

The Bears were played to a standstill in their first three periods. Going into the fourth quarter the teams were dead-locked 7-7. Then Charlie O'Rourke, a former Boston college hero, started pitching strikes, Cary Famiglietti and Hugh Gallarneau, ex-Stanford star began plowing into the line and the Bears drove straight downfield for a final period touchdown and the ball game.

RAM PRESIDENT GOES INTO ARMY

CLEVELAND — (INS) — Dan F. Reeves, president of the Cleveland Rams, today prepared to turn over his duties to Manager Mannie Eisner, Coach Dutch Clark and Secretary Bob Kelly, after an announcement stating that Reeves will report to Miami, Fla., Oct. 1 for training in the army air corps.

Reeves, who follows in the footsteps of his co-owner of the club, Fred Levy, jr., will be a second lieutenant.

Rams Gird For Orrville Tilt

Flushed with victory in their season's opener, Coach Al Fendrick's Madison high school Rams today started preparations for their encounter with Orrville high a week from next Friday night on the home field.

Rain and all the troubles it brings to footballers didn't stop the Rams from piling up a 25 to 0 score over New London Saturday night at the Madison field.

Anthony, Hammer, Gross and Bader avenged Madison's defeat of a year ago by crossing the New London goal in each of the four quarters.

Highlight of the scoring was Bader's 45-yard run after he intercepted a New London pass. Bader made his sensational dash in the last quarter.

Coach E. M. Crabb's New Londoners missed the services of Halfback Dodam who was taken out early in the game because of injuries.

Closest New London got to the Madison goal was early in the first quarter when the visiting gridsters reached the Rams' 10-yard stripe. In the last quarter New London staged another rally marching down the field for three first downs. The final gun ended this with the ball on the Madison 25.

New London meets Loudonville at Loudonville next Friday night.

NEW YORK—If it hasn't been done already, this department wants to nominate Gunder Haegg, the Scandinavian stepper, as the outstanding athlete of 1942. . . . His ten world records in less than three months don't sound as good as the 28 Paavo Nurmi hung up in the winter meets in 1925, but Heagg has stuck to standard distances while the boys were clocking Paavo at all the whistle stops like a mile and seven-eighths . . . and if Gunder manages to get from Sweden to America to run next winter it will be the record-breakingest stunt of them all. . . . If you're planning to go to St. Looey for the World series, better start thumbing now. Scribes heading west from here already are resigned to taking upper berths or worse.

Fast Freddie Team Groomed

FREDERICKTOWN — With their first league game only a week distant, the gridders of Fredericktown high are putting the last touches on their offense and defense. This year's attack is expected to feature a "razzle-dazzle" basketball type of game with a lot of laterals and flea flicker passes.

The Freddies open their season Friday at Bellville.

The backfield apparently has plenty of bucking power with Cline, the "blond express," at 180 playing at halfback and Burgholder, a 170-pound sophomore, fullback with tremendous leg drive. Bob Gifford, quarterback, and "Taxi" Schaffer, half, are the speed merchants on the squad and in practice have shown themselves to be "scatbacks" of the first order.

The line, which averages about 165, is developing into a hard blocking, fast charging aggregation with McKee and Clever at ends; Steele and Litt at tackles; Daniels and Morrison at guards; and Bell and Warner alternating at the center post.

This year's squad threatens to be one of those well known "iron man" teams since capable reserves are few and far between. Among the outstanding reserves are Vail, end; Ritchey, tackle; Kirkpatrick, back, and Brown, guard.

Coaching the boys this year is Bob Graham of Marysville who comes to Fredericktown after a two-year stand at Mechanicsburg.

* * *

The schedule:
Sept. 25 at Bellville.
Oct. 2 Centerburg.
Oct. 9 Open.
Oct. 16 Mt. Gilead.
Oct. 23 at Ohio Deaf.
Oct. 30 at Butler.
Nov. 6 at Granville.
Nov. 11 Danville.

SACRAMENTO WINS COAST TITLE

SACRAMENTO, Cal. — (INS) — The Sacramento Solons, managed by Pepper Martin, former St. Louis Cardinal ace, today held the Pacific Coast Baseball league pennant.

Sacramento took both games of a Sunday double header from the Los Angeles Angels, 7 to 5 and 5 to 1, to clinch the flag.

ERIE, CANTON READY FOR FOURTH BATTLE

ERIE, Pa.—(AP)—Weather permitting, Erie and Canton will play the fourth game in the Mid-Atlantic league Shaughnessy play-off today.

The elements caused postponement of both Saturday's and yesterday's games after Erie had won three straight in the scheduled four-out-of-seven set.

Ram Passes Win From Eagles

AKRON — (AP) — The Cleveland Rams got two perfect touchdown passes from both Parker Hall and his substitute, Indian Jack Jacobs, to smash the Philadelphia Eagles here yesterday, 24 to 14, for the Rams first National professional football league triumph of the campaign.

With the game tied at 7-all, Jacobs faded back and fired a perfect pitch 48 yards to Halfback Jack Boone on the Philadelphia 10 and he went over.

Hall sent a 57-yard effort into the arms of End Johnny Wilson on the Eagles' goal and the Rams had a 24 to 7 edge, aided by Chet Adams' field goal a few minutes earlier. Philadelphia tallied a last period touchdown on a pass from Tommy Thompson to Ernie Steel.

Both clubs tallied on freak plays in the first quarter. On the first play from scrimmage the Eagles scored as Gaylon Smith fumbled a wide pass which Vic Spears recovered on the Cleveland 20 and carried over. The Rams got a break when Len Barnum's attempted punt from his 10 was blocked by the Rams' Jim Benton, and Johnny Wilson chased it over the goal for a touchdown.

Union Baseball Team In Action

It may be football season to most of you, but out at Union high, it's still baseball season.

Four games have been scheduled by the Union team in an abbreviated schedule.

The first is tomorrow night, when the Union team plays host to Lexington. Thursday, Union goes to Lucas. On Oct. 1, Union will be at Lexington, and on Oct. 8, Lucas comes to Union.

DETROIT TEAM WINS NBF CHAMPIONSHIP

YOUNGSTOWN—(AP)—The Detroit Auto Club team is the new national amateur baseball federation champion.

Detroit captured the laurels yesterday, defeating the Hotel New Yorkers 2 to 1 behind the six-hit pitching of Ernie Slongo. The victory was Detroit's second over the New York City entry, which lost 3 to 2 Saturday. Two defeats eliminated a team.

The Auto Club won seven and lost one game during the nine-day tournament.

Even Split Tightens Card Hold

2½-Game Margin Gets Bigger as Sked Runs Out.

By BOB BRUMBY
(INS Sports Writer)

NEW YORK — The St. Louis Cardinals today were complete bosses of the National League pennant race.

Now leading by two and a half games, the Red Birds have placed the pressure tight on the Red Necks of Manager Leo Durocher and his battered, beleagured Brooklyn Dodgers.

If the Cards lose two games of their remaining six contests, the Dodgers must win all seven of their remaining games to force a play-off. Otherwise, they are as through as a broken bat.

Mort Cooper's superb, four-hitter that gave the Cards a 1 to 0 victory over Chicago yestedday in the opening game, while the Dodgers were losing 7 to 3 to Philadelphia, placed the Brooks squarely on the spot. It was Cooper's 21st win and ninth shutout of the season.

The desperate Flatbushers fought back to a 4 to 2 triumph in the nightcap behind six-hit hurling by Bobo Newsom while the Cardinals were losing to the Cubs, 3 to 0.

But the Cards still hold a stranglehold on their challengers because Brooklyn now trails by two and a half games on the losing side of the ledger and those are the tough ones to make up.

When the Cards won their last pennant in 1934, the old Gas House gang was roughing its way through all opposition. But the Gas House gang had nothing in the way of daring and fight on the fuzzy-faced team of today.

Their first game victory over the Cubs was story book stuff and a prediction of what the Cards may do to the Yankees if they gain the right to meet the haughty, money fat New Yorkers in the World series.

With Cooper displaying blinding speed and change of pace, the Cards and Cubs went into the fourth inning without scoring. Then, with Johnny Hopp on third and Whitey Kurowski on first, Manager Southworth called for a double steal.

Kurowski broke for second base. Catcher Salvador Hernandez rifled to second and Bobby Sturgeon cut off the throw and whipped to Stan Hack at third, trying to catch Hopp off the bag. By that time, however, Hopp was putting on the brakes to keep from crashing into the dugout.

The victory was the Cardinals' 35th in 41 games and 100th of the year. Their speed, drive and daring give the Yankees something to worry about.

The New York Giants, although idle, clinched third place when Cincinnati dropped a heart breaking 13-inning decision to Pittsburgh by a 2 to 1 margin. The Reds and Pirates were tied, 3 to 3, when their second game was called after seven innings because of darkness.

Redbirds Need But Single Win

TOLEDO—(INS)—The Columbus Red Birds "shuffled in for the kill" today as they stood just one victory away from the American association's Governor's Cup playoff series title.

Little Eddie Lukon took care of offensive tactics and Preacher Roe effectively handcuffed the Toledo Mudhens with five hits yesterday to provide the 1941 pennant winners with their third consecutive triumph over the upstate foes in the final playoffs, 2-1, in 11 innings. The game, played in Toledo, attracted some 6,500 rabid fans.

Lukon, who hit 23 home runs during the regular season, belted out his third and fourth circuit clouts of the present series to personally account for both Columbus tallies and break up a brilliant hill duel between Roe and Harry Kimberlin.

The series will be continued tonight in Toledo (concluded if Columbus wins). Winner of the current best-for-out-of-seven test will earn the right to meet the winner of the International league playoffs in the little world series.

ZIVIC TO MEET YOUNG EASTERNER

PHILADELPHIA—(UP)— Veteran Fritzie Zivic, of Pittsburgh, pits his boxing skill tonight against youthful Johnny Walker, of Philadelphia, in a 10-rounder at Convention Hall.

Service Teams Expected To Provide Stiff Competition For Major Gridiron Powers

(By United Press)

NEW YORK—Intercollegiate football headed toward its first big week-end today with the mid-west and the Pacific coast presenting games of mid-season calibre and a new element, the service team, looming as a threat to major gridiron powers.

Feature contests of the week-end include:

Nebraska - Iowa, Pitt - Minnesota, Great Lakes-Michigan, Iowa Air Cadets - Northwestern, Notre Dame-Wisconsin.

West — TCU - UCLA, Tulane-Southern California, Washington State - Stanford, St. Mary's-California.

South — Texas A. & M.-LSU, Jacksonville Fliers-Georgia, Wake Forest - North Carolina, Auburn-Georgia Tech.

East — Georgetown - Temple, Dartmouth - Holy Cross, North Carolina Air Cadets - Harvard, Georgia Air Cadets-Penn.

The rough road of the college coach was made rockier on the first week-end of the season when the service teams, composed of former college and professional stars, made an auspicious start. Marked as outstanding teams were the Jacksonville Fliers and the Iowa Naval Cadets coached by Bernie Bierman.

The Florida Fliers, led by Duke's George McAfee, blasted Florida, 20-7, while Georgia's Orange Bowl victors were having a struggle with little Kentucky. Paced by All-America Frank Sinkwich, Georgia finally won, 7-0.

Meanwhile, the Iowa Cadets polished off Kansas, 61-0. Led by Michigan's Forrest Evashevski, the Cadets handed the Kansans their worst defeat in 53 years. Camp Grant showed strength in dropping a 7-0 decision to Wisconsin of the Big 10; California Pre-flight defeated College of Pacific, 38-9, and the Los Alamitos Naval team outscored Pomona, 13-7.

College prestige was saved by Texas, which thumped Corpus Christi Air Cadets, 40-0. Missouri halted Fort Riley, 31-0 and Richmond defeated Camp Pickett, 27-0.

Other games in the mid-west this week-end include South Dakota-Illinois, Fort Knox-Ohio State and Butler-Indiana.

Added to the far west features are such games as Oregon State-Idaho, California Air Cadets-Oregon, and Santa Clara-Utah and College of the Pacific-Washington.

In the south its Corpus Christi-Rice, Southwest Louisiana - Alabama, Davidson - Duke, Kansas State - Texas, North Texas-SMU, and Tennessee-South Carolina.

The eastern lineup includes: William and Mary-Navy, American International-Boston university, Lafayette-Cornell, Lakehurst Naval Air Base - Princeton and Fort Monmouth-Columbia.

Bucks Enter Last Week of Practice

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Ohio State University's lightest and greenest team in a decade swung into its final week of practice for the Scarlet and Gray's season opener with Fort Knox Saturday.

Coach Paul Brown, impressed by the fact that only one minor injury was incurred in Saturday's scrimmage, prepared to send the Bucks through light workouts this week.

Paul Selby, Upper Arlington quarterback, suffered a "charley-horse" in the scrimmage session. Dick Palmer, Les Horvath and John White—already on the injured list—did not play.

Most impressive part of the session in which the first and second teams defeated the third and fourth stringers 34-0 was Paul Sarringhaus' improved offensive maneuvering.

Indians Split, Hold To 4th

DETROIT—(INS)—The Cleveland Indians today began a three-day vacation following a short series with Detroit's Tigers in which they failed to clinch fourth place in the American league race, but managed to protect their two-and-a-half game margin.

Splitting yesterday's double header with a 2-0 shutout pitched by Mel Harder in the first game and a 6-5 defeat suffered by Vernon Kennedy in the second, the Tribesmen have only five games remaining, four of which will be played against the Tigers in the final series in Cleveland Saturday and Sunday.

Mel Harder matched hurling technique with Al Benton yesterday and came up the winner to score his 12th victory against 14 defeats for the season. Only a single by Pinky Higgins in the second inning and a double by Dutch Meyer in the ninth spoiled what might have been a no-hitter for Harder.

In the second game, Jim Bagby tried for his 17th win of the season for the Indians, but left in the seventh inning in favor of a pinch hitter.

It was a see-saw battle, with the Indians pulling ahead in the first half of the ninth, but the Tigers staged a two-run rally of their own, against Vernon Kennedy, and came away with a 6-5 win.

Said bonds shall bear such consecutive numbers as the Village Clerk shall determine.

Section 4. Said tax shall be levied outside the ten mill limitation.

Said tax shall be and is hereby ordered computed, certified, levied and extended upon the tax duplicate and collected by the same officers, in the same manner and at the same time that taxes for general purposes for each of said years are certified, extended and collected. Said tax shall be placed before and in preference to all other items and for the full amount thereof. The funds derived from said tax levies hereby required shall be placed in a separate and distinct fund, which together with all interest collected on the same, shall be irrevocably pledged for the payment of the interest and principal of said bonds when and as the same fall due; further, the amount of the tax to be levied in any year shall be reduced to the extent that funds from the special assessments and taxes thereon levied are available in the fund from which such bonds are to be retired.

Section 5. Said bonds shall be the full general obligations of the village and the full faith, credit and revenue of said village are hereby pledged for the prompt payment of the same. The par value to be received from the sale of said bonds and any excess fund resulting from the same shall be used only for the retirement of said notes herein previously mentioned at maturity together with interest thereon and is hereby pledged for such purpose.

Section 6. That said bonds shall be first offered at par and accrued interest to the Village Treasurer who has charge of the Bond Retirement Fund and if said Treasurer refuses to take any or all of said bonds, then said bonds not so taken shall be advertised for public sale and sold in the manner provided by law under the direction of the Finance Committee and the Clerk, but not for less than their par value and accrued interest; the bond sale advertisement shall state that any one desiring to do so, may present a bid or bids for such bonds based upon their bearing a different rate of interest than hereinbefore fixed, provided, however, that where a fractional interest rate is bid, such fraction shall be one-quarter of one per cent, or multiple thereof; the amount of the bond or certified check to accompany bids shall be $500.00; the proceeds from the sale of said bonds, except the premium and accrued interest thereon and the amount of said bonds issued for interest, shall be used for the purpose aforesaid and for no other purpose; the premium and accrued interest received for such sale and the amount of said bonds issued for interest shall be transferred to the Bond Retirement Fund to be applied in the payment of the principal and interest of said bonds in the manner provided by law.

Section 7. The Village Clerk is hereby directed to forward a certified copy of this ordinance to the County Auditor.

Section 8. That this ordinance is hereby declared to be an emergency measure because certain notes hereinbefore mentioned are about to fall due and must be paid and therefore this ordinance shall be in full force and effect after its passage.

MARKET SHOWS MILD TENDENCY TOWARD RISE

Rails and General Motors Up Fractionally in Today's Quotations.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—(AP)—Mild-advancing tendencies were displayed by leading stocks in today's market transactions.

Up fractionally were International Telephone, General Motors, Goodrich, Southern Railway, Pennsylvania, Chesapeake and Ohio, Boeing and Sears Roebuck. Bethlehem Steel was unchanged and General Electric and Anaconda a shade lower.

Market students saw a sustaining factor in the Federal Reserve Board figures disclosing that the continued rise in industrial output in August and the first half of September put the board's seasonally adjusted index up three points to 183 per cent of the 1935-39 average.

Holders of metal stocks noted the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said that the nation-wide scrap collection campaign was producing results, with current supply being better than in some months.

'DESERTER' GETS PEN SENTENCE FOR CAR THEFT

Tells Ashland Police He Left Canadian Army While In Hospital in England.

ASHLAND — John Lawrence, 33-year-old Canadian, today had been given a one to 20-year suspended penitentiary sentence by Common Pleas Judge H. E. Culbertson on a charge of auto theft. Lawrence, who told police he is a deserter from the Canadian army, asked that he be allowed to return to Canada and give himself up to military authorities.

Lawrence was indicted by the grand jury last week with his brother, Edward, 32, for stealing an automobile belonging to Clarence Dilgard on the night of Aug. 9, in Ashland.

He told officers he volunteered in the Canadian army on Sept. 15, 1939 and was sent to England and that he escaped from a soldiers' hospital where he had undergone an operation. By ship he went to Canada and then came to Pittsburgh to join his younger brother, he said.

The Lawrence brothers admitted taking the Dilgard car from a city street in Ashland and driving it to Countryside where they were apprehended while removing a tire to use on their house trailer which they had parked east of Ashland after a tire blew out. They were enroute with their families to their homes in Hamilton, Ont.

Since their arrest the Lawrences have continued to live in a tourist camp east of Ashland.

Edward Lawrence pleaded innocent and is free under bond of $500 pending trial.

THEATERS

Battle Scenes.

"The Battle of Midway," Lieut. Com. John Ford's picture for the U. S. navy lends a factual note to the Ohio theater bill. The film is "Eagle Squadron," that tells the story of American aviators who preceded their country's entrance into the war by joining the RAF's Eagle Squadron in 1940. Authentic shots of the airmen in action taken by a camera crew in England gives realism to this picture also. Robert Stack and Diana Barrymore are co-starred and the cast includes Jon Hall, Nigel Bruce and Eddie Albert.

Romantic Comedy.

A likeable chap whose zeal for his fellow-man gets him accused of arson and murder is the central character in "The Talk of the Town," Madison attraction, co-starring Cary Grant, Jean Arthur and Ronald Colman. Cary Grant has the role and Jean Arthur plays his champion in the couse. Colman completes the trio as a law school dean in whose home Grant as a fugitive is housed by Miss Arthur. "The Battle of Midway" is included in the bill and the second feature, "Hay Foot," has William Tracy and Joe Sawyer.

Dramatic Story.

The dramatic story of a group of vegetable pickers in a small Florida town is depicted in "Juke Girl," the Ritz headliner. Ann Sheridan and Ronald Reagan are co-starred and Richard Whorf, George Tobias and Alan Hale are in the supporting cast. Miss Sheridan has the role of a tavern hostess and Reagan plays the itinerant worker who seeks her affection. "Sunset Serenade," the co-feature has Roy Rogers and George "Gabby" Hayes.

Gangster Picture.

The screen's original group of juvenile gangsters appear in "Smart Alecks," showing at the Park. Bobby Jordan, Leo Gorcey and Huntz Hall that appeared as the "Dead End Kids," in several pictures play another band of ruffians with a member who gets himself unjustly imprisoned for robbery. Gale Storm and Roger Pryor have the romantic leads, and Maxie Rosenbloom is also in the cast. "They All Kissed the Bride," Joan Crawford's starring vehicle with Melvyn Douglas, Roland Young and Billie Burke shares the bill.

ASKS ACTION ON HEALTH BOARD

State Examination Report Calls For Organization of Galion Unit.

GALION—The report of the examination made by the state bureau of inspection and supervision of public offices of the city of Galion, made public Saturday, requested that an organization of the city health department be made.

Mayor William Amann, as chairman of the board, was asked to call a meeting of the board, since it was noted that no meetings had been held in 1942.

The report states that under the general code, "If any city fails or resuses to establish a board of health, the state commissioner of health with the approval of the public health council, may appoint a health commission."

The examination, which covered the period from Sept. 22, 1940, to April 30, 1942, and was conducted by Claren F. Risser and Leon K. Rowley, recommended placing fees for plumbing inspection and fees for meat inspection in the hands of the sanitary officer and the inspector.

At present the collection of fees for meat inspection are made by both the health commissioner and sanitary inspector and plumbing fees are received by the clerk in the service director's office.
